Oil, Missile Sites Target of Bombers

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. pilots flew 170 missions against North Vietnam Thursday, their fourth highest total of the war, attacking missile sites around Hanoi and Haiphong, oil storage depots in the Haiphong area and Communist army barracks.

Navy fliers reported one SAM missile fired at them went wild and hit a village 12 miles southwest of Haiphong. They said the village went up in flames.

Viet Cong guerrillas overran a coastal hamlet 342 miles northeast of Saigon today, inflicting heavy casualties on the 25 militiamen defending the village, wounding six Vietnamese civilians and kidnapping 11, a Vietnamese spokesman reported. Six of the raiders were killed in the attack on Guan Co, on the South China Sea.

Little other ground action was reported. Twenty-four Americans were wounded in two mortar attacks Thursday night 25 miles northwest and 35 miles southeast of Saigon. South Vietnamese military headquarters said the Viet Cong peppered four scattered Vietnamese infantry positions with light mortar shelling early today, causing light casualties to the troops and wounding 10 civilians in one attack.

A U.S. spokesman reported no planes lost during the raids on North Vietnam Thursday and said no Communist MIG interceptors were sighted.

Body Recovered From Drain

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Authorities recovered the body of Ernest Willis, 46, of Little Rock, Thursday about 1½ miles from where Willis saved the life of a Little Rock youth Wednesday. Willis' wife said her husband saw Robert Cothran, 8, of Little Rock, slip while wading in a drainage ditch Wednesday. She said her husband jumped into the ditch and got the child out of the water.

A pair of slacks containing Willis' billfold were found Wednesday in the ditch.

First Water District Money Arrives

The Southwest Arkansas Water District received a first payment of $1,870,000 federal grant earlier this week. The check for $100,000 was delivered to George Peck, Texarkana president of the district, by Marvin Hagemeier, coordinator with the Economic Development Administration.

Total cost of the project is $3,740,000. The district has sold bonds to complete financing. Funds are being used now to dig canals, install pumping stations and other facilities necessary for carrying water from Millwood Reservoir to Little Rock, Hempstead, Miller, Lafayette and Columbia counties.

The first project is laying a water line seven miles to the Nekoosa-Edwards plant site at Ashdown. The paper plant has contracted with the district for 25 millions gallons of water a day. The line to plant can also furnish water to Ashdown and could be extended to Foreman.

Eventually, the system can provide water to Magnolia, Ashdown, Hope, Texarkana, Fulton, Foreman and Stamps as well as industrial sites. The over-all water district project, to be spread over five years, will cost $9.8 million, Peck said.

Guards Called to End Riots by Negroes

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Negro rioting erupted into looting and gunfire which fatally wounded one boy before a combination of daylight, state police and National Guardsmen halted the violence early today.

Calm came with dawn to the slum business district wracked by looters during a night that began with rock throwing and ended with shooting. A 16-year-old Negro boy died in a hospital of a gunshot wound.

The violence spread to all parts of the city.

"I am determined to restore law and order to every street in Newark," said Mayor Hugh Addonizio.

Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Sills ordered 300 state policemen to the city. Maj. Gen. James Cantwell called out the National Guard but he did not say how many troops were involved.

Addonizio asked for the help after he said roving bands of Negroes spread violence and destruction throughout the city "in a determined manner."

Two direct spurs to the mayor's request were a major downtown business district fire which his office said was started by a fire bomb and several gun battles between policemen and rooftop sharpshooters.

Police said guns were also being fired from moving cars.

Hospitals reported more than 122 injured persons treated, mainly for cuts and bruises, although City Hospital said it had some gunshot victims. A hospital spokesman did not know the number wounded by bullets.

Seven persons were admitted in serious condition.

The number of arrests approached 200, mostly for looting in a 20-block stretch of Springfield Avenue, a major thoroughfare through a Negro tenement district one mile from downtown. A magistrate was called in to begin arraignments.

Before the state forces were requested, all 1,400 Newark policemen had been called to emergency duty. Asked why he had not asked for state aid earlier, Addonizio said, "We had hopes that these would remain isolated incidents."

Police had reported about midnight that the situation was controlled, after about four hours of scattered battles with Negro rock-throwers and looters.

But the looting continued and then spilled from the Springfield Avenue area into other sections. Stores along Springfield Avenue were shattered.

A Negro newsman said every jewelry and appliance store in the area was looted. A white newsman counted 45 stores looted.

Scattered fires and numerous false alarms were reported after the second night's siege of the Fourth Precinct police station spread to violence in surrounding blocks and finally to wanton smashing of windows and hurling of rocks and bricks at passing cars.

Police hauled bundles of liquor, clothing and merchandise seized from looters into the Fourth Precinct station where violence began Wednesday after charges of police brutality in the arrest of a Negro taxicab driver.

This city of 400,000 has a majority Negro population.

Bryant to Allow Rally at Capitol

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas labor representatives will hold a protest march here Friday night climaxing with a rally at the Capitol where they hope to air grievances with Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

Rockefeller said Thursday he may not be available to greet the marchers but said he would have an aide present.

The marchers, who are protesting the 10-month-old strike at Ottenheimer Bros. Co. plant at Little Rock, announced Wednesday that Secretary of State Kelly Bryant had refused permission for the group to use Capitol grounds.

Bryant said Thursday the group warranted red carpet treatment and he had changed his earlier position.

Rockefeller suggested to Bryant that he furnish the labor group with a speaking system and platform. Bryant said he would try to do this.

The governor said he may not be on hand to meet the group because of his regional tour in the Pine Bluff area.

Opponent Again Raps Rockefeller

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Jim Johnson, last year's unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor, recalled Thursday that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said last summer, during the heat of the gubernatorial campaign, that he (Rockefeller) had done his homework in government.

It was learned Thursday that Rockefeller's choice for director of the state Administration Department, Clarence E. Frost of Detroit could not legally take the post because of a stipulation in the administration's bill requiring the man to be a "resident elector" of Arkansas.

A person must live in Arkansas 1 year, in a county six months and in a township for 30 days before he is a qualified voter. Frost meets none of these requirements.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

WHAT DID WE DO WRONG?

Dear Helen: Our son broke into his first house and wrecked things when he was 12. He stole a car at 13. Since then, he's been in trouble with the law several times, but nothing really serious. At 16 he went to a State Farm for Boys, but he was railroaded, just because he happened to be with a bunch of boys who mugged an old man. After that, he jumped his parole and ran away, but we went after him and got him back before anyone found out. He has just made a girl pregnant but refuses to marry her so we must pay the bills. We have never let anyone suffer for his acts, having paid for the damages to the house and to the car, and other minor things.

Helen, the boy has had everything, including much love. He doesn't need to steal. Now we want him to either finish school or go to work, but he stays in bed until noon and refuses to use the good mind he was blessed with.

We feel that it may be his parole officer's fault as he doesn't give him much personal attention.

Helen, how can a boy make these mistakes when we've given him so much? What more can we do? - NUMBED MOTHER

Leg Art Now a Factor of Engineering

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) - Leg art which was once a simple slice of cheese cake is now so complicated that, like all modern art, it is as much engineering as anything.

When the boot kick halted at the knees in the traditional fashion, function was never a factor. But when leg leather had higher aspirations, elastic inserts, zigzag zippers and everything but hinges were needed to give the boots the knee bends. At least that was the case until the glove-like plastic or leather legging came into being this year.

This slithering, shapely stem-wear forms the roots for most of the way-out styles for fall previewed for the fashion press this week during a marathon of shows called the American Designer Series.

Much of the time the leather leotards were modest solutions to the tunic-like mini-skirts. However, Oscar de la Renta, a designer especially liked by women in the Kennedy clan, used them as often with mini skirts as he did with costumes who prefer costumes minus skirts.

Perhaps in salute to the ubiquitous Kennedy women, couturier Oscar's collection reflected the native costumes of females around the world and a good many of his models were up to their thighs in boots.

Fuzzy-hatted Russians in quilted mid-length Cossack coats began the runway process followed by turbaned swamis in golden rajah shaped costumes, Indian beauties in one-shoulder saris, and Middle-Easterners in caftans, and then Orientals in obisashed pajamas and dinner gowns.

Dear Not Long: Try to understand that many men can't face grief - they fight it so bitterly that the objects of their grief - those they love best - think the bitterness is directed at them.

Perhaps this is what your minister meant: somehow a fatal illness generates courage in the person it strikes, but the courage doesn't extend to the frightened ones who will be left behind.

I can't believe your husband is unfeeling - he's numb with shock, or perhaps he's afraid to express how he feels for fear of breaking down. Talk this over with your doctor and I think you and he together can find a way to make these next months happier. - H

Chisox Use Wilhelm for Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Hoyt Wilhelm's knuckleball did its specialty act and the Chicago White Sox danced away with their 24th one-run victory. Wilhelm, who celebrates his 44th birthday in two weeks, rescued Gary Peters from an eighth-inning jam and saved the White Sox' 1-0 victory over California Thursday night.

It was the veteran's eighth save this season and reduced his earned run average to a microscopic 0.62. He has permitted just three earned runs in 43 1-3 innings.

The victory kept Eddie Stanky's White Sox two games in front of Minnesota, which rode a pair of home runs by Harmon Killebrew to a 3-2 victory over Kansas City. Detroit slipped to third place, three games off the pace as Mike Epstein led Washington to an 8-3, 6-1 doubleheader sweep over the Tigers.

In other games, Boston split a day-night doubleheader with Baltimore, winning 4-2 before losing 10-0, and Cleveland edged New York 4-3 in 15 innings.

In the National League, San Francisco shaded Houston 5-4, Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 8-5, New York split a doubleheader with Cincinnati, winning 7-3 and then losing 6-3, and Chicago topped Los Angeles 2-1. Philadelphia's game at Atlanta was rained out.

"He has to go down as one of the greatest relievers history," marvelled Stanky after Wilhelm had bailed out the White Sox again.

Peters had singled and carried home the game's only run on Ken Berry's double in the sixth. He protected the edge until the eighth when Bobby Knoop and Bill Skowron opened with consecutive singles. That brought on Wilhelm.

Jimmie Hall swatted one of Wilhelm's knucklers back to the mound and Knoop was caught in a rundown and retired. Roger Repoz popped up and Jim Fregosi tapped back to the mound, ending the threat.

Killebrew's 24th home run and second of the game against Jim Nash propelled the Twins past the Athletics. Nash struck out 12 in the eight innings he worked.

Ken Harrelson and Phil Roof homered for Kansas City, giving the A's a 2-0 lead, but Killebrew's first shot cut the lead in half and the Twins tied it in the seventh on Rich Reese's pinch single, a wild pitch and a triple by Cesar Tovar.

Epstein drove in six runs in the doubleheader against the Tigers, smashing a triple and two home runs in the first game and a two-run double in the nightcap.

Camilo Pascual and Joe Coleman both hurled four-hitters for the victories with Pascual holding the Tigers hitless over the last 6 2-3 innings of the opener.

Max Alvis doubled in the 15th inning and carried home the winning run on a sacrifice and Joe Azcue's ground ball as the Indians squeezed past the Yankees.

George Culver, 7-1, who fed John Kennedy a double play ball to escape a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the bottom of the 34th, was the winner.

Rico Petrocelli's bases-loaded single drove in two runs as Boston pushed across three unearned runs in the first inning and beat Baltimore in the opener. Joe Foy homered for the Red Sox.

The Orioles retaliated with a 36-hit attack, including home runs by Paul Blair, Brooks Robinson and Curt Motton, to take the nightcap as Dave McNally pitched a six-hitter.

Wilhelm Has a Problem, Just Old Age

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—Hoyt Wilhelm, grandpappy of the bullpen, has only one problem. He has to fight off a sagging stomach like any 43-year-old.

Manager Eddie Stanky of the Chicago White Sox calls the knuckleball ball-out artist probably the greatest relief pitcher of our age.

Wilhelm did it again Thursday night as the Sox ended the California Angels' six-game winning streak 1-0 to boost their American League lead to two games.

For the 23rd time, Hoyt responded to the alarm, taking over for tiring Gary Peters in the eighth inning with no outs and runners on first and third.

He got pinch-hitters Jimmy Hall and Roger Repoz and dangerous Jim Fregosi in order to end the threat. Then he sailed through the ninth.

The amazing Wilhelm has a 0.66 earned run average in 43 innings of work. He has a 4-1 record and eight saves.

"I usually weigh around 195 pounds and for the last five years I've been trying to get down to 185," grins Wilhelm.

"Now I've done it. And it's been through dieting."

"My wife went on a diet about two months ago and lost 30 pounds. I started eating non-fattening food along with her. It was as simple as that."

"With a pitcher, it's the legs that go first. My legs are in damn good shape. I walk a lot. I know I can go on for two or three more years. Some fellows think I can go on until I'm 50. But that isn't my goal."

General Manager Eddie Short has great plans for Wilhelm.

"On his 44th birthday July 26 we play Cleveland in a night game here," says Short. "I think I'll have Wilhelm start and have 40-year-old Smoky Burgess catch. 'I'll make it senior citizens' night and everyone over 84 years old will get in free."

The richest races of the day will be presented by Monmouth and Hollywood parks, each at 1 1/4 miles. Monmouth Park features the $100,000-added Amory L. Haskell Handicap and Hollywood Park the $147,100 Hollywood Golf Cup.

Supporting features include the one mile of the $50,000-added Arlington Handicap.

Damascus, winner of the Preakness and Belmont Stakes but beaten by a nose by Exceedingly when he faced older horses last Saturday, picks up topweight of 128 pounds in the Dwyer.

Braulio Baeza, whose mounts won almost $3 million last season, will pilot Dr. Fager in the Rockingham Special, first of two races on which the New Hampshire Sweepstakes are based.

Chicago Cubs Seem to Be Back on Feet

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Chicago Cubs are back on their feet in the National League race, but Leo Durocher isn't leaping to any conclusions. Yet.

"If this club wins the pennant I'm going to jump off the Wrigley Building into the river in Chicago," Durocher exclaimed after his Cubs pulled out of a seven-game tailspin by edging the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 Thursday night.

Paul Popovich, a light-hitting utility infielder, knocked in the deciding run with a seventh-inning single and Chuck Hartenstein, a rookie relief specialist, rescued winning pitcher Rich Nye from an eighth-inning jam as Chicago trimmed a full game off St. Louis' league lead.

The victory, first for the Cubs since July 3, lifted them within three games of the Cardinals, who were beaten by Pittsburgh 8-5. Cincinnati divided a twinnight doubleheader with New York, trimming the Mets 6-3 after bowing 7-3, and San Francisco overcame Houston 5-4 in 10 innings. Philadelphia was rained out at Atlanta.

Washington swept an American League twinnight from Detroit 8-3 and 6-1, while Cleveland topped New York 4-3 in 15 innings, the Chicago White Sox nipped California 1-0, Minnesota shaded Kansas City 3-2 and Baltimore drubbed Boston 10-0 after losing the day-night opener 4-2.

Popovich, filling in at shortstop while Don Kessinger fulfills a two-week Army reserve commitment, raised his batting average to .213 with two hits in four trips, including an infield single that sent the Cubs in front 2-0 in the seventh.

Hartenstein replaced Nye in the eighth after the Dodgers closed the gap on Willie Davis' run-scoring single. The 25-year-old reliever stranded two runners by getting Lou Johnson to tap into an inning-ending force play, then set the Dodgers down in the ninth, preserving Nye's eighth victory.

Pittsburgh's Bob Veale walked nine batters in 5 2-3 innings but picked up his 10th victory against three losses as the Pirates felled the league leaders with a four-run burst in the eighth.

Jerry May's fourth hit — a run-producing single — capped the deciding rally. Bill Mazeroski, who homered, Roberto Clemente and Donn Clendenon drove in two runs apiece for the Pirates.

Two bases-empty homers by Tommy Davis and a three-run clout by Larry Stahl carried the Mets past the Reds in their opener at Cincinnati. Winner Bob Hendley needed relief help in the seventh after holding the Reds to one hit through six innings.

Run-scoring doubles by Tony Perez, who had a two-run homer in the opener, and Lee May keyed a three-run Cincinnati sendoff in the first inning of the nightcap and pitcher Jim Maloney's RBI single capped another three-run rally in the fifth. Ted Abernathy relieved Maloney in the seventh and preserved the victory.

Hal Lanier scored on pitcher Carroll Sembera's throwing error in the 10th, lifting the Giants past Houston, Tom Haller's infield hit, an obstruction call against first baseman Chuck Harrison on Lanier's force-play grounder and a walk to Jesus Alou preceded Sembera's wild throw past second on an attempted force.

Jim Hart smashed a pair of homers for the Giants and Willie McCovey tied the score 4-4 with a leadoff homer in the last of the ninth.

Nicklaus Goes Into Tie for First

By THOMAS A. REEDY

HOYLAK, England (AP)—Jack Nicklaus marched into the final 36 holes of this British Open golf championship with a share of the lead, but still far from satisfied.

"I've not played a good round yet, not really," said the 27-year-old Ohio strongboy after shooting a brilliant 69 Thursday over Hoylake's 6,995-yard par 72 course.

Halfway through defense of the title he won at Muirfield in Scotland a year ago, Nicklaus was four under par and threatening to create some golf history.

A long hitter, he never needed it here just as he never did at Muirfield. There he needed finesse. Here, even the great Bobby Jones needed length and stamina because of the seaside winds and rain.

Just as at Muirfield, Nicklaus inherited a week of hot sun, high humidity, scarcely any breeze and no rain at all.

Nicklaus, the reigning U. S. Open champ, still was not in complete charge. With him at 140 was Bruce Devlin of Australia, who fired two straight 70s.

At 141 were Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo, Scotland's Jim Hume and England's Lional Platts and Fred Boobyer.

Tony Jacklin of England, who is striving to crash the American circuit, was at 142. Gary Player of South Africa and Clive Clark, 22-year-old fledgling of British professional golf, were at 143. Six were tied at par 144, including Doug Sanders of the United States.

Fifty-eight players survived the cutoff of 149 and ties. The Americans included Nicklaus, Sanders and Phil Rodgers at 147, Bert Yancey of Philadelphia, and Deane Bema, Bethesda, Md., at 148.

Gay Brewer, the Masters champion, shot himself out of it with a horrid 80. So did veterans Bob Sweeney, Palm Beach, Fla., and Bob Falkenburg, Los Angeles, with 156 each.

Josephine Ford was the name of the first airplane to fly over the North Pole.

Graduates Arrive for Grid Drills

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Graduated collegiate football seats of the 1966 season—a squad of 51 of them—check in today to begin drills for the 34th All-Star game against the National Football League champions, the Green Bay Packers, in Soldier Field Aug. 4.

Some experts believe this year's crop is among the best ever assembled for the series. They will be out to revenge a 38-0 pasting by the Packers last year.

Pinson Is One of Best, Steadiest

CINCINNATI (AP)—When Vada Pinson ran to his outfield position in 1958 for the first time as a Cincinnati Red, the fans got their first look at one of those much-lauded "players who come to play."

Since that day, the quiet, unobtrusive Californian has played 1,334 games and missed only 26. He had perfect attendance in four seasons. Once he played in 508 consecutive games ending May 31, 1962.

Pinson's longest absence from the lineup was seven games in 1962. He has missed four games so far this year, three of them in May when he injured his leg.

He has made more than 200 hits in four seasons and batted .343 in 1961 when the Reds won the National League pennant. He is batting .276 now with a career batting average of .299.

City Park Stars Meet Tonight

The first annual Little League All-Star game will be held tonight under the direction of D.G. Burkett.

The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock. This game consists of the players between the North and South. The directors assure this game to be a wonderful and marvelous occasion for those who come to see the little fellows play.

The game this year is built up as the hitters versus the pitchers. Some of the great pitchers that will be seen are Jimmy Smith and Dwain Jackson of Wire Products, Merchants have William Benton and from Hardee and Powell, Jene Stiger. On the other side, swinging the big sticks are such hitters as James Loudermilk of Lucy's Cafe, Alonzo Nelson of Hardee and Powell and Jimmy Smith.

The managers of the respective teams, Bill Turner and Douglas Dennis say the team who scores in the first two innings will win the game because of the strong pitcher.

All persons interested in entering the Ping Pong Tournament to be held the 24th and 27th of July are asked to come and register at the City Park. There will be two classes male and female, without an age limit, says the City Park Director.

Baseball Attendance Declines

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league baseball attendance hit a total of 12,000,781 at the annual All-Star break, a decline of 351,634 from the 1966 figures for a similar number of playing dates.

The National League had drawn 6,710,446 of the total but this was off 318,773 from last year. The sharpest declines were in Houston and Los Angeles, each off about a quarter of a million. The New York Mets had lost 128,369, Atlanta and San Francisco also were off.

Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis all reflected the play of their teams with substantial gains. The Reds were up 168,301 and the Cubs had drawn 125,146 more than last year although they still played the game the old fashioned way — in the daytime.

The high-flying Cardinals helped pack 117,954 more into the new St. Louis park, which was not available for the early weeks in 1966. Pittsburgh also was up.

American League attendance was off only 32,861 with five clubs up and five down.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS IN THE GAS INDUSTRY

The gas industry, now more than a century old, does not claim particular distinction because of its age. Rather, it is because it is a key industry, rendering a vital service to two out of three people in the United States.

The year 1936, however, is especially significant to the gas business because it was almost exactly a hundred years ago that gas was first used in America for cooking. The first gas range, of course, was not the highly efficient and beautiful appliance we cook with today but its use marked the beginning of a service that changed the economic and social lives and habits of a nation.

The Progress of the gas industry is read in the progress of civilization itself; in man's constant striving to eliminate drudgery, make his abode more convenient and efficient, and to produce useful things quicker, cheaper and with less physical effort.

Gas service brought one of man's four essentials—fuel—to his very doorstep, and the procurement and use of it has become a matter of habit to which he seldom gives a thought. In fact, modern gas service has become so thoroughly reliable that it unwittingly caused the formation of the habit.

Gas has made many jobs in the home less laborious and has created a great deal of leisure time for recreation, self improvement and other activities. It has given industry a perfect fuel for use in cutting costs and raising quality because of its flexibility of control, greater speed, cleanliness, and because it eliminates the necessity of fuel and fuel storage investments.

Today gas is the preferred cooking fuel of hotel and restaurant operators, from the most famous chefs in mammoth kitchens down to the quick-lunch counter-man. The thousand and one degrees of heat, speed, cleanliness and convenience of gas make it a perfect fuel when used in the modern, attractive and efficient appliances offered today for every purpose from toasting bread to refrigerating food and making ice, from heating water to heating a room or an entire house.

Gas is being used extensively for baking bread in large bakeries, making candy, roasting coffee, smoking meat, pasteurizing milk, pressing clothes, singeing cloth, melting glass and many kinds of metal, vulcanizing automobile tires, drying clothes, drying lumber, forging, heating rivets, galvanizing, welding, cutting metal, annealing, hardening and tempering alloy steel, tool dressing, bolt and rivet making, welding locomotive tubes, heating structural steel for fabrication, flanging and bending pipe, plate heating, soft metal melting, aluminum refining, silver refining, in treating various metals in ovens, in brick plants, cement plants, steam plants and wherever industry requires a clean, intense and controllable heat.

One hundred years ago these things were undreamed possibilities and their realization today has been brought about only through long years of experimentation, engineering achievements and huge financial investments.

Approximately five billions of dollars is invested in the gas companies in America which serve fifteen million customers, located in eight thousand communities.

In the natural gas—as differentiated from the manufactured gas—industry, which is of more concern to the hundred-odd communities served by this company, the major part of its investment must of necessity be buried in the ground out of sight. It is in the distribution systems, that giant network of mains and services which transport the gas from where it is produced to the place where it is used. The gas company cannot bring its customers to the plant as a retail store does; neither can it display its wares for all to see wherein lies its costs and investments. It must send its product from the plant to the place where the customer wants to use it; and all along the way the product itself and the mechanics for delivering it are unseen and unnoticed.

It has been estimated that there are a grand total of 260,000 miles of these transmission and distribution lines in use in the United States, enough to extend around the world ten times if they could be straightened out in one line.

Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company and its affiliates which serve natural gas to Hope and over a hundred other communities in this section, require over thirty-five hundred miles of such lines in its transmission and distribution system, in order to deliver the gas it sells.

It is quite evident that a sizeable amount of money is invested in its own distribution systems, although it represents only one item in the cost of rendering gas service. The gas itself must be searched for, thousands of feet underground, produced in the face of constantly diminishing supply and then put under pressure to send it along dozens and some times hundreds of miles before it reaches the user.

Each one of these activities involve enormous additional investments and require the services of thousands of men and pieces of equipment which enter into the comparatively small cost of this tremendously valuable service.

Contrary to an all too popular belief, the sale of gas is in no sense a protected monopoly but instead is highly competitive, subject to competition with coal, oil, coke, electricity, wood and every other form of fuel. These other fuels have their places in the economic system of domestic and industrial life but gas performs certain essential work in a manner that cannot be equalled by any other known source of heat.

To reach its present useful state has required a century of progress and zealous effort, but gas is destined to play an even greater part in the social and industrial development of the country because of its inherent worth as a perfect fuel and its added value as a major force in conserving natural resources.

Chisox Use Wilhelm for Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Hoyt Wilhelm's knuckleball did its specialty act and the Chicago White Sox danced away with their 24th one-run victory.

Wilhelm, who celebrates his 44th birthday in two weeks, rescued Gary Peters from an eighth-inning jam and saved the White Sox' 1-0 victory over California Thursday night.

It was the veteran's eighth save this season and reduced his earned run average to a microscopic 0.62. He has permitted just three earned runs in 43 1/3 innings.

The victory kept Eddie Stanky's White Sox two games in front of Minnesota, which rode a pair of home runs by Harmon Killebrew to a 3-2 victory over Kansas City. Detroit slipped to third place, three games off the pace as Mike Epstein led Washington to an 8-3, 6-1 doubleheader sweep over the Tigers.

In other games, Boston split a day-night doubleheader with Baltimore, winning 4-2 before losing 10-0, and Cleveland ripped New York 4-3 in 15 innings.

In the National League, San Francisco shaded Houston 5-4, Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 6-5, New York split a doubleheader with Cincinnati, winning 7-3 and then losing 6-3, and Chicago ripped Los Angeles 2-1. Philadelphia's game at Atlanta was rained out.

"He has to go down as one of the greatest relievers history," marvelled Stanky after Wilhelm had bailed out the White Sox again.

Peters had singled and carried home the game's only run on Ken Berry's double in the sixth. He protected the edge until the eighth when Bobby Knoop and Bill Skowron opened with consecutive singles. That brought on Wilhelm.

Jimmie Hall swatted one of Wilhelm's knucklers back to the mound and Knoop was caught in a rundown and retired. Roger Repoz popped up and Jim Fregosi tapped back to the mound, ending the threat.

Killebrew's 24th home run and second of the game against Jim Nash propelled the Twins past the Athletics. Nash struck out 12 in the eight innings he worked.

Ken Harrelson and Phil Roof homered for Kansas City, giving the A's a 2-0 lead, but Killebrew's first shot cut the lead in half and the Twins tied it in the seventh on Rich Reese's pinch single, a wild pitch and a triple by Cesar Tovar.

Epstein drove in six runs in the doubleheader against the Tigers, smashing a triple and two home runs in the first game and a two-run double in the nightcap.

Camilo Pascual and Joe Coleman both hurled four-hitters for the victories with Pascual holding the Tigers hitless over the last 6 2/3 innings of the opener.

Max Alvis doubled in the 15th inning and carried home the winning run on a sacrifice and Joe Azcue's ground ball as the Indians squeezed past the Yankees.

George Culver, 7-1, who fed John Kennedy a double play ball to escape a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the bottom of the 34th, was the winner.

Rico Petrocelli's bases-loaded single drove in two runs as Boston pushed across three unearned runs in the first inning and beat Baltimore in the opener. Joe Foy homered for the Red Sox.

The Orioles retaliated with a 6-hit attack, including home runs by Paul Blair, Brooks Robinson and Curt Motton, to take the nightcap as Dave McNally pitched a six-hitter.

Wilhelm Has a Problem, Just Old Age

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP) — Hoyt Wilhelm, grandpappy of the bullpen, has only one problem. He has to fight off a sagging stomach like any 43-year-old.

Manager Eddie Stanky of the Chicago White Sox calls the knuckleball ball-out artist probably the greatest relief pitcher of our age.

Wilhelm did it again Thursday night as the Sox ended the California Angels' six-game winning streak 1-0 to boost their American League lead to two games.

For the 23rd time, Hoyt responded to the alarm, taking over for tiring Gary Peters in the eighth inning with no outs and runners on first and third.

He got pinch-hitters Jimmy Hall and Roger Repoz and dangerous Jim Fregosi in order to end the threat. Then he sailed through the ninth.

The amazing Wilhelm has a 0.66 earned run average in 43 innings of work. He has a 4-1 record and eight saves.

"I usually weigh around 195 pounds and for the last five years I've been trying to get down to 185," grins Wilhelm.

"Now I've done it. And it's been through dieting."

"My wife went on a diet about two months ago and lost 30 pounds. I started eating non-fattening food along with her. It was as simple as that."

"With a pitcher, it's the legs that go first. My legs are in damn good shape. I walk a lot. I know I can go on for two or three more years. Some fellows think I can go on until I'm 50. But that isn't my goal."

General Manager Eddie Short has great plans for Wilhelm.

"On his 44th birthday July 26 we play Cleveland in a night game here," says Short. "I think I'll have Wilhelm start and have 40-year-old Smokey Burgess catch. 'I'll make it senior citizens' night and everyone over 84 years old will get in free."

Damascus goes in the 1 1/4 miles of the Dwyer Handicap at Aqueduct and Dr. Fager in the 1 1/4 miles of the Rockingham Special at Rockingham Park. Each is a $75,000-added event.

The richest races of the day will be presented by Monmouth and Hollywood parks, each at 1 1/4 miles. Monmouth Park features the $100,000-added Amory L. Haskell Handicap and Hollywood Park the $147,100 Hollywood Golf Cup.

Supporting features include the one mile of the $50,000-added Arlington Handicap.

Damascus, winner of the Preakness and Belmont Stakes but beaten by a nose by Exceedingly when he faced older horses last Saturday, picks up topweight of 128 pounds in the Dwyer.

Braulio Baeza, whose mounts won almost $3 million last season, will pilot Dr. Fager in the Rockingham Special, first of two races on which the New Hampshire Sweepstakes are based.

Chicago Cubs Seem to Be Back on Feet

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Chicago Cubs are back on their feet in the National League race, but Leo Durocher isn't leaping to any conclusions. Yet.

"If this club wins the pennant I'm going to jump off the Wrigley Building into the river in Chicago," Durocher exclaimed after his Cubs pulled out of a seven-game tailspin by edging the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 Thursday night.

Paul Popovich, a light-hitting utility infielder, knocked in the deciding run with a seventh-inning single and Chuck Hartenstein, a rookie relief specialist, rescued winning pitcher Rich Nye from an eighth-inning jam as Chicago trimmed a full game off St. Louis' league lead.

The victory, first for the Cubs since July 3, lifted them within three games of the Cardinals, who were beaten by Pittsburgh 8-5. Cincinnati divided a twin-night doubleheader with New York, trimming the Mets 6-3 after bowing 7-3, and San Francisco overcame Houston 5-4 in 10 innings. Philadelphia was rained out at Atlanta.

Washington swept an American League twin-nighter from Detroit 8-3 and 6-1, while Cleveland topped New York 4-3 in 15 innings, the Chicago White Sox nipped California 1-0, Minnesota shaded Kansas City 3-2 and Baltimore drubbed Boston 10-0 after losing the day-night opener 4-2.

Popovich, filling in at shortstop while Don Kessinger fulfills a two-week Army reserve commitment, raised his batting average to .213 with two hits in four trips, including an infield single that sent the Cubs in front 2-0 in the seventh.

Hartenstein replaced Nye in the eighth after the Dodgers closed the gap on Willie Davis' run-scoring single. The 25-year-old reliever stranded two runners by getting Lou Johnson to tap into an inning-ending force play, then set the Dodgers down in the ninth, preserving Nye's eighth victory.

Pittsburgh's Bob Veale walked nine batters in 5 2/3 innings but picked up his 10th victory against three losses as the Pirates felled the league leaders with a four-run burst in the eighth.

Jerry May's fourth hit — a run-producing single — capped the deciding rally. Bill Mazeroski, who homered, Roberto Clemente and Donn Clendenon drove in two runs apiece for the Pirates.

Two bases-empty homers by Tommy Davis and a three-run clout by Larry Stahl carried the Mets past the Reds in their opener at Cincinnati. Winner Bob Hendley needed relief help in the seventh after holding the Reds to one hit through six innings.

Run-scoring doubles by Tony Perez, who had a two-run homer in the opener, and Lee May keyed a three-run Cincinnati sendoff in the first inning of the nightcap and pitcher Jim Maloney's RBI single capped another three-run rally in the fifth. Ted Abernathy relieved Maloney in the seventh and preserved the victory.

Hal Lanier scored on pitcher Carroll Sembera's throwing error in the 10th, lifting the Giants past Houston. Tom Haller's infield hit, an obstruction call against first baseman Chuck Harrison on Lanier's force-play grounder and a walk to Jesus Alou preceded Sember's wild throw past second on an attempted force.

Jim Hart smashed a pair of homers for the Giants and Willie McCovey tied the score 4-4 with a leadoff homer in the last of the ninth.

Nicklaus Goes Into Tie for First

By THOMAS A. REEDY
HOYLAK, England (AP)—Jack Nicklaus marched into the final 36 holes of this British Open golf championship with a share of the lead, but still far from satisfied.

"I've not played a good round yet, not really," said the 27-year-old Ohio strongboy after shooting a brilliant 69 Thursday over Hoylake's 6,995-yard par 72 course.

Halfway through defense of the title he won at Muirfield in Scotland a year ago, Nicklaus was four under par and threatening to create some golf history.

A long hitter, he never needed it here just as he never did at Muirfield. There he needed finesse. Here, even the great Bobby Jones needed length and stamina because of the seaside winds and rain.

Just as at Muirfield, Nicklaus inherited a week of hot sun, high humidity, scarcely any breeze and no rain at all.

Nicklaus, the reigning U. S. Open champ, still was not in complete charge. With him at 140 was Bruce Devlin of Australia, who fired two straight 70s.

At 141 were Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo, Scotland's Jimmy Hume and England's Lional Platts and Fred Boobyer.

Tony Jacklin of England, who is striving to crash the American circuit, was at 142. Gary Player of South Africa and Clive Clark, 22-year-old fledgling of British professional golf, were at 143. Six were tied at par 144, including Doug Sanders of the United States.

Fifty-eight players survived the cutoff of 149 and ties. The Americans included Nicklaus, Sanders and Phil Rodgers at 147, Bert Yancey of Philadelphia, and Deane Bema, Bethesda, Md., at 148.

Gay Brewer, the Masters champion, shot himself out of it with a horrid 80. So did veterans Bob Sweeney, Palm Beach, Fla., and Bob Falkenberg, Los Angeles, with 156 each.

Josephine Ford was the name of the first airplane to fly over the North Pole.

Graduates Arrive for Grid Drills

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Graduated collegiate football seats of the 1966 season—a squad of 51 of them—check in today to begin drills for the 34th All-Star game against the National Football League champions, the Green Bay Packers, in Soldier Field Aug. 4.

Some experts believe this year's crop is among the best ever assembled for the series. They will be out to revenge a 38-0 pasting by the Packers last year.

Pinson Is One of Best, Steadiest

CINCINNATI (AP) — When Vada Pinson ran to his outfield position in 1958 for the first time as a Cincinnati Red, the fans got their first look at one of those much-lauded "players who come to play."

Since that day, the quiet, unobtrusive Californian has played 1,334 games and missed only 26. He had perfect attendance in four seasons. Once he played in 508 consecutive games ending May 31, 1962.

Pinson's longest absence from the lineup was seven games in 1962. He has missed four games so far this year, three of them in May when he injured his leg.

He has made more than 200 hits in four seasons and batted .343 in 1961 when the Reds won the National League pennant. He is batting .276 now with a career batting average of .299.

City Park Stars Meet Tonight

The first annual Little League All-Star game will be held tonight under the direction of D.G. Burkett.

The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock. This game consists of the players between the North and South. The directors assure this game to be a wonderful and marvelous occasion for those who come to see the little fellows play.

The game this year is built up as the hitters versus the pitchers. Some of the great pitchers that will be seen are Jimmy Smith and Dwan Jackson of Wire Products, Merchants have William Benton and from Hardee and Powell, Jene Stiger. On the other side, swinging the big sticks are such hitters as James Loudermilk of Lucy's Cafe, Alonzo Nelson of Hardee and Powell and Jimmy Smith.

The managers of the respective teams, Bill Turner and Douglas Dennis say the team who scores in the first two innings will win the game because of the strong pitcher.

All persons interested in entering the Ping Pong Tournament to be held the 24th and 27th of July are asked to come and register at the City Park. There will be two classes male and female, without an age limit, says the City Park Director.

Baseball Attendance Declines

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball attendance hit a total of 12,000,781 at the annual All-Star break, a decline of 351,634 from the 1966 figures for a similar number of playing dates.

The National League had drawn 6,710,446 of the total but this was off 318,773 from last year. The sharpest declines were in Houston and Los Angeles, each off about a quarter of a million. The New York Mets had lost 128,369, Atlanta and San Francisco also were off.

Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis all reflected the play of their teams with substantial gains. The Reds were up 168,301 and the Cubs had drawn 125,146 more than last year although they still played the game the old fashioned way — in the daytime.

The high-flying Cardinals helped pack 117,954 more into the new St. Louis park, which was not available for the early weeks in 1966, Pittsburgh also was up.

American League attendance was off only 32,661 with five clubs up and five down.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS IN THE GAS INDUSTRY

The gas industry, now more than a century old, does not claim particular distinction because of its age. Rather, it is because it is a key industry, rendering a vital service to two out of three people in the United States.

The year 1936, however, is especially significant to the gas business because it was almost exactly a hundred years ago that gas was first used in America for cooking. The first gas range, of course, was not the highly efficient and beautiful appliance we cook with today but its use marked the beginning of a service that changed the economic and social lives and habits of a nation.

The Progress of the gas industry is read in the progress of civilization itself; in man's constant striving to eliminate drudgery, make his abode more convenient and efficient, and to produce useful things quicker, cheaper and with less physical effort.

Gas service brought one of man's four essentials—fuel—to his very doorstep, and the procurement and use of it has become a matter of habit to which he seldom gives a thought. In fact, modern gas service has become so thoroughly reliable that it unwittingly caused the formation of the habit.

Gas has made many jobs in the home less laborious and has created a great deal of leisure time for recreation, self improvement and other activities. It has given industry a perfect fuel for use in cutting costs and raising quality because of its flexibility of control, greater speed, cleanliness, and because it eliminates the necessity of fuel and fuel storage investments.

Today gas is the preferred cooking fuel of hotel and restaurant operators, from the most famous chefs in mammoth kitchens down to the quick-lunch counter-man. The thousand and one degrees of heat, speed, cleanliness and convenience of gas make it a perfect fuel when used in the modern, attractive and efficient appliances offered today for every purpose from toasting bread to refrigerating food and making ice, from heating water to heating a room or an entire house.

Gas is being used extensively for baking bread in large bakeries, making candy, roasting coffee, smoking meat, pasteurizing milk, pressing clothes, singeing cloth, melting glass and many kinds of metal, vulcanizing automobile tires, drying clothes, drying lumber, forging, heating rivets, galvanizing, welding, cutting metal, annealing, hardening and tempering alloy steel, tool dressing, bolt and rivet making, welding locomotive tubes, heating structural steel for fabrication, flanging and bending pipe, plate heating, soft metal melting, aluminum refining, silver refining, in treating various metals in ovens, in brick plants, cement plants, steam plants and wherever industry requires a clean, intense and controllable heat.

One hundred years ago these things were undreamed possibilities and their realization today has been brought about only through long years of experimentation, engineering achievements and huge financial investments.

Approximately five billions of dollars is invested in the gas companies in America which serve fifteen million customers, located in eight thousand communities.

In the natural gas—as differentiated from the manufactured gas—industry, which is of more concern to the hundred-odd communities served by this company, the major part of its investment must of necessity be buried in the ground out of sight. It is in the distribution systems, that giant network of mains and services which transport the gas from where it is produced to the place where it is used. The gas company cannot bring its customers to the plant as a retail store does; neither can it display its wares for all to see wherein lies its costs and investments. It must send its product from the plant to the place where the customer wants to use it; and all along the way the product itself and the mechanics for delivering it are unseen and unnoticed.

It has been estimated that there are a grand total of 260,000 miles of these transmission and distribution lines in use in the United States, enough to extend around the world ten times if they could be straightened out in one line.

Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company and its affiliates which serve natural gas to Hope and over a hundred other communities in this section, require over thirty-five hundred miles of such lines in its transmission and distribution system, in order to deliver the gas it sells.

It is quite evident that a sizeable amount of money is invested in its own distribution systems, although it represents only one item in the cost of rendering gas service. The gas itself must be searched for, thousands of feet underground, produced in the face of constantly diminishing supply and then put under pressure to send it along dozens and some times hundreds of miles before it reaches the user.

Each one of these activities involve enormous additional investments and require the services of thousands of men and pieces of equipment which enter into the comparatively small cost of this tremendously valuable service.

Contrary to an all too popular belief, the sale of gas is in no sense a protected monopoly but instead is highly competitive, subject to competition with coal, oil, coke, electricity, wood and every other form of fuel. These other fuels have their places in the economic system of domestic and industrial life but gas performs certain essential work in a manner that cannot be equalled by any other known source of heat.

To reach its present useful state has required a century of progress and zealous effort, but gas is destined to play an even greater part in the social and industrial development of the country because of its inherent worth as a perfect fuel and its added value as a major force in conserving natural resources.

Captain Left River to Help Build New Rail City of Hope

Late Capt. J. T. West Past 40 When He Began New Career Here

LUMBER FIRM HEAD

Through Company He Helped Establish Municipal Power Plant

The railroad opened up Hempstead county in 1873; the City of Hope was incorporated two years later, in 1875—and in 1876 there came to this three-year-old community a well-known Mississippi steamboat captain, Judson T. West, to stake his future in a growing country.

Captain West died in 1907 at the age of 71—but his 31 years' residence here marked him as one of the economic founders of the city. He established the Hope Lumber company, was president of the Bank of Hope—and, through the lumber company, he was instrumental in getting the water and light plant established as a municipally-owned undertaking.

Municipal Plant History

Captain West's connection with the founding of the municipal plant was this: About 1890 the City of Hope acquired a small generator and placed it on the property of Hope Lumber company. Captain West having agreed to terms whereby his company would furnish steam to operate the machine.

At that time the city water and electric departments were apparently separate undertakings, the first well being drilled in the middle of Division street, opposite Joe B. Greene's confectionery, and pressure being obtained by means of a stand-pipe close by. The first manager of the city water department was Dan Ferguson, while a Mr. Wornack apparently had charge of the generator in the electric department on the Hope Lumber company property. Mr. Wornack later was succeeded by a Mr. Poor, who succeeded by the late George Sandefur, who for a score of years managed the municipal plant to its present development.

Upon Mr. Sandefur's death last year the responsibility for the plant was placed upon Arch Moore, its present manager.

Hope is now in its 46th year of municipal electric and water service—a distinguished municipal-plant operation record for the entire United States.

Hope citizens remember that the captain was originally a river man, for he kept one of his steamboat bells at the lumber company plant—a bell now preserved by his widow, Mrs. Hattie A. West.

Man of Two Careers

But few realize how fully he lived his complete careers—one on the great river, which he served until he was 40; and the other as a founder of Hope, during the last 31 years of his life.

Captain West was born in Huron county, Ohio, in 1836, the son of a farmer. At 14 he joined a wholesale grocery establishment in Dubuque, Iowa—and at 16 went on the Mississippi as a steamer cabin-boy. His skill made him a pilot at 18. And when he was 24 he was captain and part owner.

For 16 years he owned and operated some of the best-known steamers plying the Mississippi between St. Louis and New Orleans. Once upon a time young Samuel L. Clemens served him as a cabin-boy. But that was before the world had heard of Mark Twain as steamer pilot and famed humorist.

Another world celebrity Captain West knew well in the river days was James J. Hill, the railroad king, an intimate friend—yet building the thing that was to destroy river shipping.

The captain understood. And he left the Mississippi to follow just such a railroad as his friend Hill was building, settled in a new community that the railroad had created—and grew old with it.

He was a man with two careers—Captain West was—and he succeeded in both, as a captain of the river and a captain of commerce on the land.

A Race on the River

There is this unpublished story about him—one of his river exploits as a young pilot.

In 1858 the first Atlantic cable was completed, and Queen Victoria of Great Britain sent a message of congratulations to President James Buchanan of the United States.

It was the "biggest news" of the generation, and copies of the queen's first cable message were dispatched to all parts of the United States. But communications were still uncertain in the interior. A copy of the cable arrived in St. Louis, but the route from there to Dubuque, Iowa, was by water.

The crack pilots of the Mississippi arranged a two-man race up the river to Dubuque, Captain West being given the original copy of the queen's message, and his opponent being given a second copy.

The captain justified their confidence for he brought his steamer in to Dubuque first with the news that the Atlantic had been spanned by wire.

The judge was horror stricken. He stared at the prisoner with all the consternation in the world in his eyes. "Do you mean to tell me," he asked, "that you murdered that poor old woman for a paltry three dollars?"

The prisoner shrugged his shoulders. "Well, Judge, you know how it is. Three bucks here and three bucks there—it soon mounts up."

come as quickly as they could to help defend the place.

The boys jumped on their mules. Mr. Hartsfield said they had only one saddle between them, but with their old shotguns the youths started out for Washington to do their part. However, when they were nearly to Washington they met Judge A. H. Carrigan, who told them that the militia had been disbanded and they could go home. He complimented them upon their loyalty, and the boys returned home.

Sometime during the 70's the post-office was established and Simon T. Sanders, who was then postmaster at Washington, named it DeAnn, possibly after the old cemetery near there. This name is taken probably from some early French settler, while Arkansas was yet a part of the Louisiana Purchase Territory.

Mr. Hartsfield's wife, who was the former Collie Honeycutt, is the daughter of an early settler also. Her father had the first gin, which was a horse gin, in this part of the county. The farmers paid for their cotton ginning by giving 1-12th as toll.

Old Uncle Johnny Clark was probably the first pioneer in this community, coming there sometime in the 40's. He raised a large family who grew up and married and settled in or near the same section.

Grandpa England is given credit for organizing the first Baptist church at DeAnn.

Other early settlers around DeAnn are: W. J. Burks, Uncle Dick Samuels, and the Breeds, who came in after the war.

Uncle Billy Burke had a wine press, and the trough in which the grapes were pressed is still in the possession of Mrs. J. C. Burke.

Mr. Hartsfield recalled when the star mail route from Prescott to Washington was first established and the mail carried by horse. The mail carrier was called Old Daddy Burns. One afternoon he had a narrow escape near Mr. Hartsfield's home. Daddy Burns had made his trip from Prescott to Washington in a cart that day and while he was in Washington a heavy rain storm came up. At this time Cannon branch had no bridge across it and when the mail carrier went to ford it the current was so swift that it carried his cart and horse downstream and they became tangled in a drift. Daddy Burns was able to get out on a log and get his horse's head above the water—and hold it this way while he yelled for help. Finally his cries were heard and some of the neighbors went to him.

They said when they got there Daddy Burns was yelling and praying by turns. After he and his horse were rescued the party was forced to leave the cart and mail. When they took him to a house and dried him off someone asked how deep the water was, as Daddy Burns couldn't talk plain, he said, "From Hell to Hell," meaning from hill to hill.

He was obliged to go home that night and return the next day and fish his cart out and recover the mail, which had received a good wetting.

Battle of Poison

60,000 Yanks in Arkansas.

We had some fighting commanders; such as Old Joe Shelby, Marmaduke and Cabell, and we were ordered out to meet Gen. Steel. We heard they were coming down the old Little Rock and Washington road and we met them at Little Missouri River and had some skirmishes and scraps at Wolf Creek, east of the river. The Yanks got scared and moved further south and started to cross the river near Okolona. We met them and had a right bloody little fight and drove them back across the river. We finally fell back to Prairie DeAnn and built some breastworks out of logs and stayed in line of battle then four days and nights. The Yanks crossed the river and we fell back to within five miles of Washington and stayed there in line of battle two days. The Yanks became frightened and turned toward Camden instead of Fulton. We reinforced by 700 Choctaw Indians and we were all ordered forward. We caught up with the Yanks a Masco, near where Prescott is now located, and had another fight. They sent a train of 300 wagons, four pieces of artillery, with a strong force out foraging for something to eat. We cut them off from the main army at Poison Springs and this was in my estimation the hardest fight we had with them. Among their forces there were two or three thousand negroes and our Indians certainly did kill and scalp those negroes. Those we did not kill, we captured—the whole outfit, cannons, wagons and teams.

General Steele and his army of Yanks had now arrived in Camden. General Price had met the Yanks at Louisiana at Pleasant Hill but it wasn't pleasant for the Yanks. General Price forced them back to New Orleans. He then brought his command back to help us out. After the fight at Poison Springs we went down below Camden and crossed the river. The Yanks had sent another train of wagons and teams and cannons and several thousand men to Pine Bluff for supplies.

Cut Off Federals
While General Price was after General Steele at Camden, we cut this Pine Bluff gain off and had a hard fight. We whipped them and captured the entire outfit at Mark's Hill. General Steele decided he had better

Birthday of 15 Is Same as Arkansas'

President Jackson Proclaimed Arkansas a State June 15, 1836

Among the large family of Hope Star subscribers there are at least 15 persons who celebrate their birthday on the same date the State of Arkansas does.

It was June 15, 1836, that President Andrew Jackson signed the bill which officially made the Territory of Arkansas the 25th American State; and June 15 is also the birthday of the following persons, who registered for the State Centennial celebration: Bobby Nell Faulkner, Hope Route 4. Luther C. Spears, Prescott Route 5. Dorothy McRae Duckett, Hope. George Lyons, Hope. J. A. Cullins, Blevins. Arnold Bratcher, Prescott. Will W. Suratt, Hope. Billy Knute May, Emmet. Evelyn Boyce, Washington Route 2. Melvin E. Smith, Nashville Route 1. Selma Lee Walker, Patmos. William Kirk James, Hope. Mrs. Gordon Waddie, Emmet. Ferrell Williams, Hope. Doye Bennett, Bodcaw.

get out of the country, as they could not get supplies and were enduring some of the hardships we had endured the previous winter. We caught up with them at Jenkins Ferry on Saline River in Bradley county and had another fight. It was hard to tell who got the best of the fight though and that ended the fighting in this part of Arkansas. This was some time in May or June, 1864.

With men and horses about worn out, we came back near Washington and camped—first on one duty and then another, scouting all the time.

About September, 1864, I was sent after the Government negroes, with permission to come by my home and stay all night. I got my negroes to Fulton and left them with another one of the boys somewhat older than I was and I started for my father's house to spend the night. When within about one mile of the house, my horse got frightened, reared up and fell back upon me, breaking my leg. My horse ran on ahead of me and I was left in the woods with a broken leg. I had to show that I was a brave soldier and began crawling on my hands and knees—had crawled about three quarters of a mile when I was met by my father and brother who had heard me calling. They carried me home and sent 8 miles for a doctor. This ended my war experience. While I went through some terrible experiences and was in some D—tight places, I think I did right in taking my father's place, even though I was only a boy. I am often reminded of it all when I make a wrong step with my lame leg.

WE JOIN OUR GOOD FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS THROUGHOUT THE LENGTH AND BREADTH OF ARKANSAS IN PROUD CELEBRATION OF THE ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF OUR STATE

The bauxite deposits in Saline and Pulaski Counties, first discovered near Little Rock by the late John C. Brauner, Arkansas State Geologist, are among the state's contributions to our economic life. We have been identified with the bauxite industry in Arkansas for more than a third of a century.

The Car That Gives Performance With Economy

There's one low price car that's in a class by itself. Come in today and see. You can size up some cars by their features. But you can't size up a Ford until you drive this great new 1936 V-8. For here is performance of the only V-8 engine in any car below $1645. Here is roadability made possible by a unique spring and chassis construction.

Twenty minutes in a Ford V-8 begins to tell you how much comfort means. You get an entirely different feel. You get around quicker in traffic. You drive with less effort. You find a car in a class by itself for sheer modern performance. Come in today and let us show what the new 1936 Ford V-8 can really do.

The Hope Auto Company has one of the largest and most complete parts departments in the South. Here you secure only Genuine Ford Parts. Insist on the Genuine. The "just as good" parts featured at lower prices sometimes turn out to be the most expensive after all. Be sure that you get only the Genuine Ford replacement parts.

The Hope Auto Company was reorganized in 1920 in its present location.

An Exchange Student Drowns While Wading

R.L. BRIDGY

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Hooshang Bagheri Tar, 21, drowned Thursday in the Caddo River near here when he apparently stepped into a hole while wading.

Don Pilkinton, Supt. of Arkadelphia Schools, said Tar was one of many Iranian exchange students who are attending school at Arkadelphia. He said Tar was a student at Harding High School because he did not know any English. He said the rest of the students attended Ouachita Baptist University and Henderson State Teacher's College.

Tar was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Haidar Bagheri Tar of Teheran, Iran. Authorities said he was wading in the river near Interstate 30 with Mike Conaser, 16, of Arkadelphia.

Conaser told authorities Tar stepped into a hole and went under. Tar's body was recovered.

Let Frost Accept First, Says Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Thursday he would wait until Clarence E. "Mike" Frost accepts the job as director of the state Administration Department before he worries about whether Frost is eligible for the position.

The question of Frost's eligibility came up Thursday. Frost, 38, a Detroit banker, does not comply with the residency requirements established in the 1967 act that created the department.

The act, which was drawn up by Rockefeller's staff, says the head of the department must meet the same requirements as the state comptroller. The state comptroller is required by law to be a "resident elector" of Arkansas.

A person must live in Arkansas one year, in a county six months and in a township for 30 days to be a qualified voter in the state.

State Auditor Jimmie "Red" Jones said he would ask the attorney general's office for an opinion on the wording "resident elector" if Rockefeller did not. Jones said he informed G. Thomas Eisele, Rockefeller's legal adviser, of the language of the act Wednesday.

Frost, vacationing in Florida, told the Associated Press Monday that he would not make up his mind about the job until he returned to Detroit later this week.

The state Administration Department was generally considered the most important position in Rockefeller's "Era of Excellence."

Residency requirements have also made it doubtful whether Lynn A. Davis, an FBI agent in Los Angeles, can be appointed State Police director as Rockefeller wants.

The attorney general's office said Davis was ineligible because law requires the State Police director to live in Arkansas the ten years prior to his appointment. Rockefeller has said he would go ahead and appoint Davis and see that a friendly court suit was filed to test the legality of the appointment.

Hackler, Moss Challenged to Lie Test

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Truman Altenbaumer, executive director of the Arkansas Republican State Committee, challenged Thursday the "truthfulness" of recent statements made by Hugh Hackler and A. J. Moss.

Altenbaumer also said he would meet with Hackler, state Game and Fish Commission director, and Moss, former state Welfare Commissioner, at any time and take a lie detector test concerning demands Moss and Hackler claim Altenbaumer made last year.

Hackler produced a letter from Moss Wednesday in which Moss said he was present when Altenbaumer told Hackler GOP members should have 50 percent of the commission's jobs. Hackler has said previously that Altenbaumer made the demand.

"It is obvious that Mr. Hackler, in effect, wrote the letter to himself for Mr. Moss' signature," said Altenbaumer.

Altenbaumer said that unless Hackler and Moss agree to take a lie detector test, "then I trust they will shut up about the matter."

Surveyor 4 Signals on Way to Moon

By JIM STROTSMAN
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "Beaming back great" signals to earth, America's Surveyor 4 winged moonward today to go prospecting for iron on rugged lunar terrain with a magnet, shovel and revolving camera eye in a study of how the moon's craters are formed. "Everything looks real good," project officials reported after tracking the mooncraft for several hours. "The spacecraft is great—just great."

Surveyor 4 sensors successfully locked onto the sun. The sun and star Canopus, to be acquired later in the flight, are to orient the craft during its 63-hour, 224,730-mile voyage to the moon.

The robot prospector blasted off at 7:53 a.m. (EDT) today aboard a fiery Atlas-Centaur rocket, aiming to soft land Sunday at 10:30 p.m. on rough Sinus Medii, the central bay region, almost squarely in the center of the moon's visible face as it is seen from earth.

The Atlas-Centaur's performance was "flawless," said Robert H. Gray, director of unmanned launch operations for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Kennedy Space Center here.

The launch of Surveyor 4 — most complex automation yet built to scout a potential astronaut landing space — originally was scheduled Thursday. It was postponed until today so technicians could repair a minor rocket problem.

In addition to taking thousands of pictures at the site with its television camera, the 2,290-pound moon robot was equipped with an extendible claw-like shovel to test the soil's strength and deposit fragments from the lunar surface near a small magnet attached to one of Surveyor's three foot pads.

If fragments stick to the magnet, it would lend support to a theory that the moon's craters were formed by the impact of iron-bearing meteors rather than volcanic action.

The two-inch-long magnet, a bonus experiment being flown for the first time on any U.S. moonship, could attract ferrous objects the size of a paper clip, officials said. Some scientists estimate that as much as 10 percent of the lunar surface may consist of iron-bearing meteoric dust.

"The little magnet may eliminate some scientific concepts" about the makeup of the lunar surface, said Benjamin Milwitsky, surveyor program manager for NASA headquarters in Washington, D.C.

He cautioned, however, that the experiment's results will not be conclusive because magnetically attractive metals other than iron could also stick to the magnet.

The mooncraft's extendible scoop is a twin of the one successfully used on Surveyor 3. That craft soft-landed last April 19 on the moon's Ocean of Storms and used its shovel to find out that the lunar surface is strong enough to support an Apollo spaceship and a walking astronaut.

The digging device consists of a scoop about the size of a man's hand attached to an extendible arm able to reach up to five feet away from the spacecraft's main frame. Using four motors, it can be manipulated like a small steam shovel to dig a furrow as deep as 18 inches and swing in an arc more than one-quarter of the way around the spacecraft.

Scientists calculate the scoop could plow up a total of 24 share feet. Surveyor 3's digging device showed the lunar surface has a texture like wet sand.

Mounted Police Have New Boss

OTTAWA (AP) — A senior Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer who is less than two years from retirement has been appointed commissioner of the 7,700-man federal police force.

Malcolm F. Lindsay, who at 58 is the same age as outgoing Commissioner George B. McClellan, will take over the $24,680-a-year post Aug. 15. Though he will be only the 13th commissioner in the 94-year history of the RCMP, he will be the fourth since 1959.

Partially responsible for the steady turn-over is a provision for retirement on full pension after 35 years of service.

Peace in Vietnam Is Invisible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The search for peace is like trying to teach an elephant to play the violin.

For 17 years the United States has been involved in Vietnam—in all that time the main target has been the Communists—but victory, or even peace, is just as invisible as it was in 1950 when President Harry S. Truman first began giving the French economic aid to sustain them in their war with the Reds.

That went on for four years, until the French were smashed by Ho Chi Minh and his Communists and had to withdraw. Then a non-Communist regime was established in South Vietnam and American aid continued, first economic aid, then economic aid plus military advisers, then the whole works until now there are 465,000 U.S. troops there.

But the reports from Vietnam sound like a dreary monotony. Even the critics of the war in this country seem to have lost their intensity. They sound more muted than a year ago. But so do the Johnson administration and the American military. At the rate it's going this war can last for years.

The best that could be said about it last week by the American military commander there, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, was that the war is being won slowly. And he felt he needed another 100,000 to 140,000 men. If President Johnson doesn't give him the men he thinks necessary to do better, then the result looks like a stalemate, which is what the Communists say it is now.

The main reason, of course, for the lack of progress is that the United States is not fighting all-out. And it won't if only because of world opinion if this country went all-out against such a primitive society as the North Vietnamese.

But this restraint is such a fixed and accepted policy now—some variations in bombing are possible but they still won't be all-out—that it is generally accepted as a limitation within which the United States must do the best it can.

Yet, even if the North Vietnamese should be driven back behind their own frontier there is no assurance such a victory would be more than just a temporary one. Before South Vietnam can be considered safe against Communist encroachment, the vast peasantry of South Vietnam must want to support the South Vietnam government, which hasn't yet been proven truly democratic.

That the Johnson administration is conscious of the lack of progress, and the prospect of an indefinite truce, seems clear enough from its lack of glowing predictions. There is a general awareness, except perhaps among the extreme critics, that the United States can't just pull out, admitting defeat, without

War Ace Lies Gravely Ill

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP) — Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, celebrated World War II flying ace and Medal of Honor winner, lies gravely ill, suffering from lung disease.

Boyington, who shot down 28 Japanese planes and headed the "Black Sheep" squadron, underwent abdominal surgery recently and is hospitalized with bronchitis and emphysema.

The "Black Sheep" were about 30 fliers who, Boyington once said, had been kicked out of other squadrons but distinguished themselves throughout the war.

wrecking the confidence of other backward peoples that this country is willing to help them against aggression.

But there is uneasiness about the gloomy outlook and some of it was expressed this week by eight liberal House Republicans hoping some way could be found to bring an end to the fighting. They proposed the United States take the initiative in de-escalating the war—to see if Hanoi would respond—by a long pause in the bombing.

But they overlooked a few things, as Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the House Democratic leader, pointed out: that this country halted the bombing several times and accepted 28 peace proposals from time to time, all of which were ignored by the Communists.

In his inability to find a solution Johnson at least has the comfort of knowing that the critics can't agree on a solution, either.

More Troops for Vietnam Promised

By FRANK CORMIER and FRED S. ROFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has acted quickly and with dramatic flair to try to squash any notion his administration is divided on the need for more troops in Vietnam.

But Gen. William C. Westmoreland reportedly was irked by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's statements that more effective use must be made of troops already in Vietnam.

As yet there is no word on how many more men will be dispatched to the Southwest Asian fighting but Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, said at a White House news conference Thursday: "I am being provided the forces, as I have recommended."

In a bid to emphasize administration solidarity, Johnson summoned reporters to his private living quarters on the second floor of the White House for the first news conference he has held there.

He had with him Westmoreland, McNamara and Army Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to back up the presidential assertion that "we have reached a meeting of the minds."

Dutifully, Westmoreland, McNamara and Wheeler voiced their agreement with this statement as Johnson polled them in turn for the benefit of newsmen.

With all that, Johnson and the other participants in the unusual session made it clear many questions remain to be answered about future American troop commitments in Vietnam. "The troops that Gen. Westmoreland needs and requests, we feel it necessary, will be supplied," said Johnson.

The President also said the exact time for sending reinforcements, the exact number to be involved, the exact type of military specialists to be dispatched — even the exact country whose uniform they will wear — are matters to be worked on in consultation with other Vietnam allies.

U.S. forces now number about 466,000 in Vietnam. Various reports on military desires ranged to 200,000 more troops but Pentagon speculation has centered in the area of 70,000.

Westmoreland said "for every man that is deployed we will get a double return in combat power. Or, to put my thought in other words, we have already written off the logistic support."

"We will get greater return in combat power for the forces that are henceforth deployed."

Sources familiar with Westmoreland's thinking said the four-star general regarded McNamara's statements on effective troop use and his criticism earlier this week of the ratio of support to combat troops as a reflection on Westmoreland's leadership.

There was no outward sign of discord at the news conference.

Wheeler declared the war planners "are in accord." But he emphasized the open questions remaining, saying: "The problem now is to settle upon the sources and how we are going to meet the requirements."

Judging from the words of the participants, the agreement apparently dealt more with principles than specifics.

There has been growing speculation Westmoreland might be seeking far more additional U.S. troops than Washington felt able or willing to supply.

George Westinghouse was 23 when he invented the air brake.

Panel Cuts Money for Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration hopes of reviving foreign aid proposals rejected by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee rest on a belated defense by Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

When the Middle East crisis prevented Rusk from testifying on President Johnson's 1967 aid bill, the committee went ahead anyhow and cut it back in several areas.

Rusk then arranged to appear today in support of the legislation.

There are indications the committee's rough treatment of the President's foreign aid recommendations stems at least in part from the opposition of several members to the administration's Vietnam policies.

The panel includes some of the Senate's leading Vietnam doves, including Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark.

In meetings through Thursday, the panel has:

— Cut more than $250 million from 1967-68 requests, with more deletions expected.

— Refused most of the two-year authorizations requested by the President for advance planning.

— Voted to strip the President of his authority to increase, without congressional approval, the number of countries receiving aid in three categories.

— Deleted as superfluous policy declarations Johnson had proposed as a new look at the foreign aid program.

— Rejected a request for a $2 billion increase to $9 billion in the amount the administration can pledge to guarantee private U. S. investors from losses in foreign operations as a result of confiscation, war, revolution or currency-exchange problems.

Mrs. Smith Heads Cancer Drive Here

The 1967 educational and fund-raising Crusade of the American Cancer Society in Hope will be led by Mrs. Norman Smith of 810 South Main Street and Mrs. Kenneth Petre of 1311 South Hervey in Hope. It was announced today by Dr. Merlin J. Kilbury, Jr., of Little Rock, President of the Arkansas Division of the Society. The Crusade will begin in Hope on Monday, July 24.

Mrs. Smith accepted the leadership of the Crusade because of "her deep concern with the urgency of the cancer problem."

She pointed out that if present rates continue, 1 out of 4 Americans now alive will develop cancer. Of those who develop cancer, 2 out of 3, at the present rate will die of the disease. However, Mrs. Smith said, "There is a great potential for saving lives now through earlier cancer detection than ever before."

"We want to help step up programs to reduce deaths from cancer now and increase the funds needed for the Society's vast nationwide research program," Mrs. Smith said.

The Society's 1967 Crusade theme is "Guard Those You Love, Know Cancer's Warning Signals, Give to the American Cancer Society."

Postal Hike to 6 Cents Requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — It would cost you six cents to mail a letter—or a dime if you send it air mail—under a postal rate increase approved by a House subcommittee.

That's a penny more than the present first class letter rate and two cents more than the air mail levy.

Post cards would be hit even harder, jumping from their present four cent and six cent rates for surface and air mail respectively to the same six cents and ten cents approved for sealed letters.

The proposal still has a long way to go through congressional channels before becoming law, however.

China Hate Steaming Up Neighbors, Could Trigger Big Asia War

AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China's leaders, seeming to hate just about everybody else, are playing with dynamite which could easily explode into big war in Asia.

Peking is steaming up trouble for her neighbors: Hong Kong, Burma, India, Macao, Thailand, Vietnam and Korea. Long-range, Red China also indicates intentions of resurrecting the severely damaged Communist party of Indonesia and heading it into another "people's war of liberation" in the style of Vietnam.

Potentially, the most dangerous activity at the moment is the turmoil Peking is stirring up in Britain's crown colony, Hong Kong.

It is difficult to fathom the reason for it. If the intention is eventually to force Britain out, a deadly dangerous situation would exist in British resistance or any U.S. involvement.

If Red China's regime were considered a rational one, the guessing would be that it had no intention of grabbing Hong Kong since the colony is important to trade and one of the most important sources of Peking's foreign exchange.

But many consider the current Peking regime far from rational under Mao Tse-tung, Lin Biao, Kang Sheng, Chen Po-ta and others who have banded together to dominate the country's armed forces and to purge opponents who might have been of a more cautious and practical turn of mind.

Hong Kong's Communists have been rioting and terrorizing to demonstrate their solidarity with Mao's "thinking" and his "great proletarian cultural revolution". It is unlikely that these Communists acted without instructions from Peking. Perhaps China's purpose is a limited objective: to force Britain out of the mainland New Territories which are held on lease until the end of this century.

China also has stirred up trouble in Burma, which had been steering as correct and neutral a policy as possible for a nation having a 1,200-mile frontier with China. Once again, the rioting of young Chinese in Rangoon must have been far from spontaneous, since it began with a sudden outburst of Mao badges and assaults on Burmese citizens.

Authority Can Take Gifts

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Turnpike Authority can legally accept gifts from such groups as the Western Arkansas Development Association the attorney general's office ruled Thursday.

The opinion went to Ross Pendergraft of Fort Smith, a member of the authority. The Western Arkansas group plans to raise money to finance an in depth study of a toll road through western Arkansas.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Genry Genger said the 1967 act which created the authority makes it legal for the agency to borrow funds from any public or private sources and to accept gifts.

Firing Again Breaks Out Along Suez

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Tank and artillery fire rattled across the Suez Canal cease-fire line again today, and the Egyptians claimed they destroyed an Israeli launch and a number of rubber boats the Israelis were trying to launch in the waterway.

The Israeli army reported that sporadic attacks by Egyptian artillery, mortars, tank and machine guns began at sunset Thursday and continued today at points ranging from the southern end of the canal to El Qantara, near the northern end.

The Israelis claimed they knocked out three Egyptian tanks while suffering several casualties to their troops.

An Egyptian communique, reporting only one 45-minute exchange of fire this morning, said the Israelis fired first near El Qantara with artillery and machine guns. The communique claimed return Egyptian fire destroyed an Israeli tank.

As the shooting continued, Lt. Gen. Odd Bull, the U.N. Palestine truce observer, headed from Cairo to Tel Aviv to discuss stationing of U.N. observers along the cease-fire line. Bull met Wednesday with Israeli army officials in Tel Aviv and Thursday with the Egyptians in Cairo, but there was no indication yet when the observers would take their stations.

The canal, which was blocked during the June war, has been the scene of intermittent fighting for several days.

Meanwhile, Israel turned another screw on Egypt's strangling economy, announcing it will tap the Egyptian oil wells in the Sinai desert which yield nearly 5 million tons a year.
